Current Event #3

Spreading in the U.S., Ebola will turn into one of the largest epidemics since HIV/AIDS. During the crisis in Dallas, two nurses got infected prior to the death of the patient. To omit any harm done, stores recently visited by the two nurses have been shut down. Containment is key in the struggle against ~~it~~.
the virus

To prevent any further contamination, all flights from West Africa have been cancelled. Several National Institutes of Health jumped on that boat immediately. Texans are particularly worried since the White House contributions are very lackluster. Frenzy ponders among the minds as this as in Ebola still lingers.

While the question of "How and who is in charge?" tips off, the public health system ensures that no one single person can be in charge. All this information transpires from MSNBC and isn't biased. A former Wisconsin governor, Tommy Thompson, helped with 9/11 and got involved with the health system. CDC directors are slowly but steadily fixing this problem.

Great start to what could be an excellent sentence w/ just a couple of tweaks
